The speaker of the programme was Mr. Manoram Gogoi, the famous entrepreneur, columnist and social activist. Several issues were raised by the respected speaker keeping in view the prospective of self-employment in the young generation through the promotion of indigenous resources. Mr. Gogoi had put forward different practical potentialities by applying which the new generation can frame their self dependencies as well as the development of the society in a positive manner. Around forty five numbers of participants were present in the programme along with all the faculties from various departments. It was all the more a fruitful programme as the participants, primarily the students of the college got a platform to rebuild their potentialities to be engaged in different indigenous practices that could provide them ultimate means of employment in future.
